Dear Kristin Mayes,

G-01032E-03-0515

I recieved a shocking natural gas bill for the time period of 12/4/03 to 1/6/04. My first impression was that it was an error, until I heard complaints from others for the same reason.

I compared the bill with last year's for the same time period, and the figures are as follows:

12/4/02 to 1/7/03	34 days	94 ccf	$55.08
12/4/03 to 1/6/04	33 days	84 ccf	$81.26

This is an increase of about 35%.

A few days later I recieved a letter from Unisource Energy stating that they have "exciting news" for their customers.

1. Significant benefits to their customers. How are we benefited by a gross increase in rates?
2. Three new investors listed whose support will reward the shareholders. That's fine, but if shareholders are rewarded--the benefits should sift down to the customers also. The letter states that the rates won't change. The rates were elevated before the letter was sent.
3. The last paragraph is humorous, as it states, "do not worry about behind the scene changes, as the service will remain the same." I have no complaints about the service, but the rates have already been changed and increased.

The bottom line seems to be more profits for the few at the expense of the many. This large increase is a huge hardship for many customers in this low income state.

The monthly increase of the gas bill is nearly twice my monthly income increase, and this is just one utility.

The commission needs to rethink this outrageous increase in gas rates, especially now that it's winter and gas usage is most important for warmth.

Sincerely,

Claudia M. Copitas
